

ATLAS

COLLECTOR PLATFORM

Terms & Conditions

Version 1.1 | 17 August 2026

These Terms and Conditions ("Terms") are a legally binding agreement between you and Atlas Collector, Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Atlas", "we", "us", or "our"). By creating an account or using any Atlas service, you agree to these Terms.

Welcome to Atlas — a platform built for collectors who care about what they own. We want collecting with Atlas to feel simple, trusted, and genuinely enjoyable. These Terms exist to be clear about how we operate and what you can expect from us. Please read them.

These Terms cover the following services:

- Atlas Pack Opening — digital opening of curated packs assembled by Atlas from its own inventory
- Atlas Promotional Tokens — promotional credits that can be applied toward pack openings
- Card Vault & Custody — Atlas's physical storage of cards on behalf of users
- Collection Management — digital tracking and estimated valuation of your holdings

1. Definitions

- "Atlas Pack" means a curated digital pack assembled by Atlas containing cards drawn from Atlas's own physical inventory, distributed according to Atlas's published rarity tiers and pull rates.
- "Promotional Token" or "Token" means a promotional credit issued by Atlas at its discretion that can be applied toward pack openings on the Platform. Tokens are not a financial instrument, have no monetary value, and are subject to change or discontinuation at any time.
- "Vault" or "Vault Service" means Atlas's physical custody service under which cards allocated to a user are held by Atlas on that user's behalf at Atlas's facility.
- "Vaulted Cards" means any cards held in the Vault by Atlas on behalf of a user.
- "Collection Value" means Atlas's estimated market value of a user's Vaulted Cards, calculated using Atlas's internal price tracking system. This is an estimate only.

- "Promotional Abuse" means any deliberate attempt to exploit the Token system, promotional campaigns, or any other Atlas feature in a manner inconsistent with its intended purpose, including creating multiple accounts to accumulate Tokens, using automated tools to interact with promotional mechanics, or coordinating with others to circumvent fair-use limits.
 - "Insolvency Event" means any voluntary or involuntary bankruptcy, liquidation, administration, receivership, or winding-up of Atlas Collector, Inc.
 - "Platform" means the Atlas mobile application, website, and all associated services.
-

2. Eligibility and Account

The Atlas Platform is available to users who are 18 years of age or older. By creating an account, you confirm that you are at least 18 years old. Atlas reserves the right to immediately suspend or terminate any account where a user is found to be under 18.

Atlas may request proof of age at any time to verify compliance with this requirement. Certain features may carry additional requirements under applicable local law.

You are responsible for keeping your account credentials secure and for all activity that takes place under your account. Each person may hold only one Atlas account. Creating multiple accounts is a breach of these Terms. If you believe your account has been accessed without your authorisation, please contact support immediately.

You are responsible for ensuring your use of the Platform complies with the laws of your jurisdiction.

3. Availability and Geographic Restrictions

Atlas is available globally, subject to local laws and restrictions. It is your responsibility to ensure that your use of Atlas — including pack purchases and participation in any promotional programme — is lawful in your jurisdiction.

Atlas reserves the right to restrict or withdraw access to the Platform, or to specific features, in any jurisdiction at any time where Atlas determines that legal or regulatory requirements make continued access inadvisable. Atlas does not knowingly make its services available where they would be prohibited by law.

4. Promotional Tokens

4.1 Nature of Promotional Tokens

Atlas may, from time to time and entirely at its discretion, issue Promotional Tokens to users as part of a promotional programme. Tokens are a discretionary promotional benefit — they are not a contractual entitlement, a financial product, currency, or stored-value instrument of any kind.

The availability, issuance method, accumulation rules, expiry, and redemption mechanics of Tokens are determined by Atlas and may change at any time. Atlas may modify, suspend, or permanently discontinue the Token programme without prior notice, though Atlas will endeavour to notify users of material changes where reasonably practicable.

4.2 How Tokens Work

When the Token programme is active, Tokens may be issued through mechanisms described on the Platform, such as daily login rewards or other promotional activities. The number of Tokens required to open a particular pack type, and the packs available for Token redemption, are set by Atlas and displayed on the Platform at the point of redemption.

Redemption rates — including the number of Tokens required per pack opening — may vary by pack type and may change over time. The current rate is always shown on the relevant pack page before a Token is applied.

4.3 Token Limitations

Promotional Tokens:

- Have no monetary value and cannot be exchanged for cash, credit, or any financial instrument;
- Are non-transferable and may not be sold, gifted, or assigned to another account;
- Are subject to a maximum accumulation limit set by Atlas and displayed on the Platform — Tokens accrued beyond this limit are forfeited automatically;
- May expire at the end of a promotional period, upon account inactivity, or upon discontinuation of the Token programme;
- Are consumed at the point a pack opening is initiated and are not refundable once used.

4.4 Promotional Integrity

Tokens and promotional programmes are made available for individual users engaging with Atlas in good faith. Any attempt to exploit these programmes — including creating multiple accounts to accumulate Tokens, using automated tools or scripts, or coordinating with others to circumvent per-user limits — constitutes Promotional Abuse and is a breach of these Terms.

Atlas monitors account activity and reserves the right to investigate suspected Promotional Abuse. The consequences of confirmed Promotional Abuse are set out in Section 10 of these Terms.

5. Atlas Pack Opening

5.1 What You're Buying

When you open an Atlas Pack — whether through a purchase or a Token redemption — you are acquiring physical trading cards from Atlas's own inventory. Atlas is the seller in every pack opening. The specific cards in each pack are determined by Atlas's distribution system in accordance with the published rarity tiers and pull rates for that pack type.

All card distribution is handled exclusively on Atlas's servers. Outcomes are determined and committed before the opening experience is shown to you. Cards allocated to you in a pack opening are added to your Vault immediately and become your property from the moment of allocation.

No physical shipment takes place at the point of opening. Cards are held in your Vault on your behalf. See Section 9 for details on vault custody and card return.

5.2 Odds and Pull Rate Disclosure

The rarity tiers, pull rate percentages, and top available chase cards for each Atlas Pack type are displayed on the pack product page before you open. We encourage you to review these before committing.

Published odds reflect aggregate probabilities across all packs of that type. They describe the distribution across many openings, not any guaranteed individual result. Atlas updates the list of available chase cards as inventory changes, so the cards shown may differ from those available at the precise moment you open.

5.3 All Openings Are Final

Once a pack opening has been initiated, it cannot be cancelled, paused, or reversed. The purchase price or Token used is consumed at that point regardless of outcome. All pack openings are final.

By opening a pack, you acknowledge that card values are determined by the secondary collector market and are outside Atlas's control. Atlas makes no representation about the monetary value of any card you may receive.

5.4 If Something Goes Wrong

Atlas takes care to operate its distribution system reliably. If a verified technical error on Atlas's side causes a pack opening to fail, produce incorrect results, or distribute cards inconsistently with published odds, Atlas will investigate and work to make it right. Depending on the nature of the issue, Atlas will offer one of the following:

- A replacement pack of the same type, at no charge;
- A store credit equal to the pack's purchase price or Token value;
- A refund of the purchase price to your original payment method, for paid packs.

To report a technical issue with a pack opening, please contact Atlas support within 14 days of the affected session. Atlas's server logs are the reference for any investigation. If the issue cannot be verified on Atlas's side, Atlas is not in a position to offer a remedy.

Atlas's liability for pack opening errors is limited to the remedies above. Atlas is not liable for consequential or speculative loss, including any expectation of card value.

5.5 Pack Opening Is Not Gambling

Atlas Packs are a retail product. Every opening results in real, physical cards — there is no possibility of receiving nothing. Cards are physical goods held in your Vault from the moment of allocation. The randomised selection mechanic is consistent with commercially available sealed trading card products.

Atlas does not operate a gambling service, lottery, or prize scheme.

6. Card Authenticity

6.1 How Atlas Sources Cards

Atlas sources all cards through suppliers and vendors it believes to be reputable and operating within the legitimate trading card supply chain. Atlas applies reasonable care in its sourcing decisions and is committed to the authenticity of the cards it holds in inventory.

The trading card market is not without risk of counterfeit or misrepresented products — a challenge that exists across the entire industry, including at professional grading level. Atlas takes this seriously and will act in good faith whenever authenticity concerns arise.

6.2 Atlas's Commitment

If you receive a card through an Atlas Pack that you believe is counterfeit or materially misrepresented, please contact Atlas support as soon as possible. Atlas will investigate and work with you in good faith to find a fair resolution, which may include a replacement card, store credit, or refund of the original pack price.

Atlas's financial responsibility in any confirmed authenticity case is limited to the original purchase price of the pack in which the card was received, or its Token equivalent. Atlas is not liable for secondary market value, grading premiums, or any other amount exceeding the original pack price. This reflects a genuine operational limitation: card market values fluctuate and Atlas cannot assume open-ended financial exposure based on prices it does not set or control.

6.3 Supply Chain

Where Atlas determines that cards sourced from a specific supplier are not authentic, Atlas will pursue that supplier through available commercial channels to seek remedy. The outcome of those efforts does not affect Atlas's commitment to users under Section 6.2.

7. Card Valuations and Price Estimates

7.1 How Atlas Estimates Card Values

Atlas displays estimated card values on the Platform, derived from publicly available market data, transaction history, and Atlas's internal price tracking systems. These estimates exist to help you understand what your collection might be worth — we know that matters to collectors.

All prices on the Platform are estimates. They represent Atlas's best view of market conditions at the time of display, are updated on a best-efforts basis, and are not:

- A guarantee of achievable sale price;
- A professional appraisal or certified valuation;
- A representation that Atlas will buy or sell any card at the displayed price;
- Suitable as the basis for tax filings, insurance claims, legal proceedings, or customs declarations.

7.2 Your Responsibility

Card markets move quickly. Before making any significant buying, selling, or financial decision based on a card's value, we recommend cross-referencing Atlas's estimates with other market sources. Atlas is not liable for any loss arising from reliance on price data shown on the Platform, including for transactions on or off Atlas.

8. Gamification, Fair Use, and Promotional Abuse

8.1 Intended Use of Promotional Features

Atlas's promotional features — including Tokens, rewards, and any other gamified mechanics — are designed to reward genuine individual engagement with the Platform. These features are offered in good faith and are intended for personal, non-commercial use by individual users acting in their own name.

8.2 What Constitutes Abuse

The following behaviours constitute Promotional Abuse and are a breach of these Terms:

- Creating more than one Atlas account per person for any purpose, including to receive additional Token allocations or to benefit from new-user promotional offers;
- Using automated tools, bots, scripts, or any programmatic means to interact with the Platform or its promotional features;
- Coordinating with other users to pool, transfer, or exploit promotional benefits in a manner inconsistent with their intended individual use;
- Exploiting any system error, loophole, or unintended feature behaviour to receive benefits beyond those Atlas intended to offer;
- Any other conduct that Atlas reasonably determines to be an attempt to unfairly extract value from promotional features.

Atlas monitors account and usage patterns to identify Promotional Abuse. This may include reviewing account creation data, Token accumulation velocity, IP addresses, device identifiers, and other signals. Users suspected of Promotional Abuse may be contacted by Atlas before any action is taken, where Atlas considers this appropriate.

8.3 Consequences of Promotional Abuse

Where Atlas determines, acting reasonably, that a user has engaged in Promotional Abuse, Atlas may take one or more of the following actions:

- Void and remove any Tokens or promotional credits obtained through abusive conduct;
- Reverse any pack openings that were initiated using fraudulently obtained Tokens, removing the cards from the user's Vault;
- Apply an offset or set-off against the Collection Value of any cards in the user's Vault to the value of the benefit obtained through Promotional Abuse, as a debt owed to Atlas;
- Suspend the user's account pending investigation;
- Permanently terminate the user's account.

Where multiple accounts are found to be associated with a single individual or coordinated group, Atlas reserves the right to apply these consequences across all associated accounts.

For the avoidance of doubt: Atlas does not have the right to physically confiscate cards that were legitimately purchased through paid pack openings. The offset and set-off remedy applies only to the financial value of benefits obtained through Promotional Abuse and operates as a debt obligation, not a property claim.

9. Card Vault and Custody

9.1 Your Cards Remain Yours

When a card is allocated to you through a pack opening, you own it. Atlas holds your cards in its physical facility as your custodian — a bailee in legal terms. This means:

- You are the legal owner of your Vaulted Cards at all times.
- Atlas never acquires any ownership interest in your cards.
- Your Vaulted Cards are held separately from Atlas's own assets and are not available to Atlas's creditors in the event of an Insolvency Event.

We take this responsibility seriously. The trust you place in Atlas by letting us hold your cards is something we aim to earn every day.

9.2 How We Store Your Cards

Atlas stores Vaulted Cards at its physical facility with reasonable care, taking steps to maintain appropriate storage conditions. We cannot guarantee against all forms of natural degradation over time, which is inherent to physical collectibles.

For high-value and chase cards, Atlas may create individual condition documentation. For common cards received through standard pack openings, individual condition records are not created at intake. Cards pass directly from Atlas's inventory into the Vault at the point of allocation; the condition at allocation reflects the condition in which Atlas held them in its own inventory.

9.3 What Atlas Is Responsible For

Atlas takes reasonable steps to keep your cards safe. If your Vaulted Cards are lost or destroyed while in Atlas's care due to Atlas's negligence, Atlas will compensate you. Compensation is capped at the lower of Atlas's estimated Collection Value for the affected cards at the time of the claim, or USD $250 per account in total.

This cap reflects where Atlas is as an early-stage business. We intend to revisit and improve our protections as we grow. If you hold cards of significant value in your Vault, we recommend arranging your own independent collectibles insurance — Atlas will confirm custody in writing to support any such policy.

Atlas is not liable for loss or damage caused by events outside its reasonable control, including natural disasters, third-party theft despite reasonable security measures, or other force majeure events.

9.4 Physical Return of Cards

Physical delivery of Vaulted Cards to users is not currently available on the Platform. Atlas is working to make this available in a future update.

If you need to arrange the return of specific cards before this feature is live, please reach out to Atlas support. We will do our best to accommodate requests on a case-by-case basis. Any shipping, handling, or insurance costs for such arrangements are at your expense.

10. Account Suspension and Termination

10.1 Your Right to Close Your Account

You may close your Atlas account at any time by contacting support. Before your account is deactivated, Atlas will work with you to address any Vaulted Cards — including arranging return or other resolution.

10.2 Atlas's Right to Act

Atlas may suspend or permanently terminate your account, with or without prior notice depending on the severity of the circumstances, if Atlas reasonably determines that you have:

- Created multiple accounts or engaged in any form of Promotional Abuse as defined in Section 8;
- Provided false or misleading information to Atlas, including misrepresentation of your age;
- Engaged in fraudulent activity, money laundering, or any illegal conduct in connection with the Platform;
- Violated these Terms in any other material way.

Where possible and appropriate, Atlas will notify you of a suspension and provide an opportunity to respond before permanent termination is applied.

10.3 What Happens to Your Cards on Termination

Account termination does not extinguish your ownership of legitimately acquired Vaulted Cards. If your account is terminated, Atlas will work with you to arrange return or transfer of cards that were not obtained through Promotional Abuse or fraudulent conduct.

Atlas reserves the right to apply a set-off against the Collection Value of Vaulted Cards for any amounts legitimately owed to Atlas — including the financial value of benefits obtained through confirmed Promotional Abuse — before releasing cards or their equivalent value. This operates as a contractual debt offset and not as a forfeiture of property rights.

Cards allocated through confirmed Promotional Abuse — such as pack openings initiated using fraudulently obtained Tokens — may be reversed and removed from the Vault as part of the remedies described in Section 8.3.

11. Business Continuity and Insolvency

11.1 Our Commitment to You

If Atlas ever ceases operations, your cards remain yours. Because Vaulted Cards are held separately from Atlas's own assets, they are not available to Atlas's creditors. Atlas will use best efforts to ensure your cards are returned to you.

11.2 How We Would Return Your Cards

In the event of a planned wind-down or Insolvency Event, Atlas will seek to return cards through one or more of the following, in order of preference:

1. Facilitate physical return to your registered address. Shipping and handling costs in this scenario are at your expense.
2. Offer to purchase your cards at an agreed buyback value, subject to Atlas having sufficient liquidity at the time.
3. Arrange for a nominated third-party custodian to take over custody and facilitate the return process.

In an unplanned Insolvency Event, our ability to execute an orderly return may be constrained by circumstances. We will do everything reasonably possible.

11.3 Low-Value Collections

Where your total Collection Value is assessed at less than USD $50 at the time of a wind-down, and where the cost of return or buyback would be economically disproportionate to that value, Atlas may:

- Aggregate low-value collections for bulk resolution, with any net surplus returned to you.
- Where no net return is achievable after costs, treat the collection as abandoned — but only after providing at least 30 days' written notice and a reasonable opportunity for you to arrange self-funded collection.

This applies only in a wind-down scenario, not during normal operation.

11.4 Notice

In a planned wind-down, Atlas will give users at least 60 days' notice by email and via the Platform. In an unplanned Insolvency Event, notice will be given as soon as is reasonably practicable.

12. Limitation of Liability

Atlas stands behind the services it provides and takes its responsibilities to users seriously. At the same time, we need to be clear about the boundaries of our financial liability.

To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law:

- Atlas's total liability to you for any claim — whether in contract, tort, or otherwise — shall not exceed the greater of: (a) the total amount you have paid to Atlas in the 12 months before the event giving rise to the claim, or (b) USD $100. For claims relating to Vaulted Cards, the cap in Section 9.3 applies.
- Atlas is not liable for indirect, consequential, or speculative loss, including loss based on card values you expected to receive or realise.
- Atlas is not liable for loss arising from your reliance on price or valuation data on the Platform.
- Nothing in these Terms limits Atlas's liability for its own fraud, gross negligence, or wilful misconduct, or for any liability that cannot be excluded by applicable law.

The Platform is provided on an "as available" basis. Atlas does not warrant uninterrupted or error-free operation, and we work promptly to address issues when they arise.

13. Indemnification

You agree to indemnify and hold harmless Atlas, its directors, employees, and agents from any claims, losses, damages, or costs (including reasonable legal fees) arising from: (a) your use of the Platform in breach of these Terms; (b) any false or misleading information you have provided to Atlas, including misrepresentation of your age; (c) Promotional Abuse or other fraudulent conduct on your part; or (d) your infringement of any third-party rights in connection with your use of the Platform.

14. Intellectual Property

All content on the Platform — including the Atlas name, brand, visual design, software, and card imagery provided by Atlas — is owned by or licensed to Atlas and is protected by applicable intellectual property law. Nothing in these Terms grants you any rights in Atlas's intellectual property beyond the right to use the Platform for personal, non-commercial collecting purposes.

Card artwork, set names, and related trademarks are the property of their respective game publishers and are used on the Platform solely to identify and catalogue collectible cards. Atlas does not claim ownership of third-party intellectual property.

15. Force Majeure

Atlas is not liable for any delay or failure in its obligations under these Terms where that delay or failure results from events outside its reasonable control, including natural disasters, government action, civil unrest, war, pandemic, power or internet outages, or failure of third-party services Atlas depends on.

Atlas will notify users as soon as practicable of a force majeure event affecting service delivery and will use reasonable efforts to resume normal operations as quickly as possible.

16. Dispute Resolution and Governing Law

We would always prefer to resolve any issue directly. If you have a concern, please contact Atlas support first and give us the opportunity to make it right.

These Terms are governed by the laws of the State of Delaware, United States. Any dispute that cannot be resolved informally shall be submitted to binding arbitration under the rules of the American Arbitration Association, conducted in English in Delaware. You waive any right to participate in a class action.

You may opt out of arbitration by sending written notice to Atlas within 30 days of first accepting these Terms. This clause does not affect your right to raise complaints with consumer protection authorities in your jurisdiction.

17. Changes to These Terms

Atlas may update these Terms from time to time. For material changes, we will give you at least 14 days' notice by email or in-app notification before they take effect. Continuing to use the Platform after that date constitutes acceptance of the updated Terms. If you do not agree, you should stop using the Platform before the changes take effect.

We keep a version history of these Terms on the Platform so you can always see what has changed and when.

18. Privacy and Data

Atlas takes the privacy and security of your personal data seriously. Our Privacy Policy, available on the Platform, describes what data we collect, how we use it, and your rights in respect of it. By using Atlas, you consent to the data practices described in our Privacy Policy.

Atlas is committed to working toward compliance with applicable data protection law across the jurisdictions in which it operates. If you have questions about how your data is handled, please contact us through the support channel in the app.

19. Contact and Support

If you have questions about these Terms, your Vault, your cards, or anything else, please reach out through the support channel available in the Atlas app. We aim to respond promptly and to resolve any issue fairly.